5 Epic Games Leaving Xbox Game Pass on January 15, 2026

As January 15, 2026 approaches, Xbox Game Pass subscribers are counting down the days to squeeze in some epic adventures before several standout games rotate out of the service. In the latest Xbox Countdown Sale, Microsoft has sweetened the deal by offering notable discounts on titles that are about to leave Game Pass — giving players one last chance to dive in or even buy the games outright at a reduced price before they disappear from the catalog.

On January 15, 2026, five memorable games are scheduled to exit Xbox Game Pass, spanning a variety of genres and playstyles. First on the list is Flintlock: The Siege of Dawn, a visually striking action-RPG that blends intense combat and mythic storytelling. Neon White, the award-winning speedrunner-shooter that innovatively mixes fast-paced combat with card-based mechanics, will also leave the service on the same day. Narrative lovers should prioritize Road 96, an acclaimed episodic road trip adventure filled with branching choices that shape your journey

For fans of cyberpunk and cooperative play, The Ascent — a gritty twin-stick shooter set in a neon-soaked dystopian city — will be departing. Rounding out the exit list is the festive and family-friendly platformer The Grinch: Christmas Adventures, which brings a seasonal twist to classic platforming action.

These departures mark the regular ebb and flow of the Game Pass library, which constantly rotates to make room for exciting new additions in 2026, such as AAA blockbusters and fresh indie hits. If you haven't gotten around to these titles yet, now's the time to jump in while your subscription still gives you access — and to take advantage of the Countdown Sale discounts before these games leave the service for good
